Chowchiakow, in central Honan, was visited by Japanese air raiders yesterday afternoon, their objective being the new aerodrome recently constructed there. Several hangars were damaged. —Our Own Correspondent.

JAPANESE
RAIDER DOWN IN FLAMES

Shanghai, To-day.
A Japanese bomber was hit by Chinese anti-aircraft fire and crashed down in flames over Wushih on Saturday, according to reports received here to-day and admitted by the Japanese.

Engaged in attacking Chinese troop concentrations and industrial establishments, more than 20 Japanese planes were forced to fly low because of poor visibility and a very low ceiling.

The raid was successful until the planes attacked a Chinese position defended by anti-aircraft guns, and shrapnel pierced the engine of one plane setting it ablaze.

WUSHIH HAVOC

The machine, wrapped in flames, dived to the ground behind the Chinese lines. The two pilots were killed.

Wushih has been bombed extensively in the past few days. Most shops in the main street have been set on fire and shattered by bombs while casualties among non-combatants are reported to be extremely heavy. —Reuter.

HUGE CONCENTRATION
BY JAPANESE

Shanghai, 1.15 p.m., To-day.

No reliable confirmation is yet available regarding a Japanese claim to have broken Chinese resistance on the Kashing front.

The Japanese report states that the Japanese leaving Hangchow on their left are striking through Nanzin and have already established a position astride the Nanking-Hangchow motor-road at Wushing.

The fall of Nanzin, fifteen miles east of Wushing, is admitted by Chinese authorities, who declare that the army under Chang Fat-kwei is still intact, stubbornly resisting the Japanese advance.

Doubt is held regarding the accuracy of the Japanese claim as it would indicate an advance of thirty miles in 24 hours, a task practically impossible under the conditions, bad weather and rough country.

JAPANESE OBJECTIVE

Indications are, however, that the direction of the Japanese offensive is Changhing, which would give them command of the south of Taihu Lake, the Hangchow-Nanking motor road, and the road girdling the lake between Hangchow and Wushih.

Advance on the northerly front has slowed down, apparently owing to the necessity for reorganisation of the Japanese forces prior to the assault on the strongly-prepared Kiangyin-Wushih defence line.

LULL BEFORE STORM

Japanese forces are halted within a few miles of Wushih, and their main concentration appears to be against Kiangyin. More than 100,000 Japanese troops, supported by warcraft, are preparing for a drive against Kiangyin and the defence lines for a distance of about ten miles south.

At the moment, a lull has developed on the fronts, but it is merely the lull before another violent storm. The drive is expected to be opened this afternoon. —Our Own Correspondent.

WUSHIH UNOFFICIAL CLAIM

Shanghai, 2 p.m., To-day.

Part of Wushih was occupied by Japanese troops this morning according to a Japanese report, but official confirmation is lacking. — Reuter.

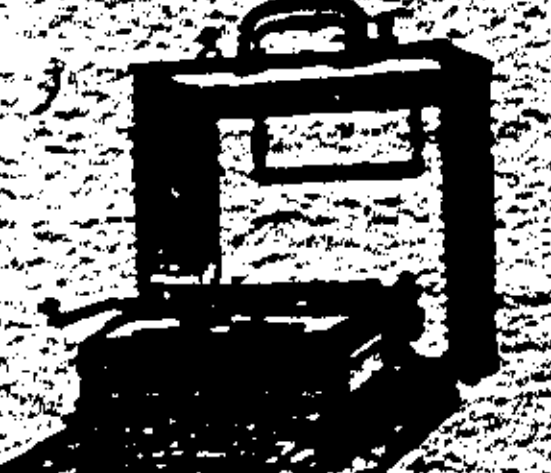

Tokyo, 1.35 p.m., To-day.

Britain's relations with Japan vis-a-vis Sino-Japanese hostilities is the subject of a national "congress" meeting which opened in Tokyo at noon to-day, attended by leading industrialists, military and navy leaders and members of the Diet.

The gathering was addressed by Japanese diplomats and prominent politicians and strong resolutions of an anti-British character are to be submitted.

The "congress" is entirely unofficial but its organisers are influential in guiding Japanese public opinion. In general its purpose may be defined as agitating for action against Britain.

It is understood that the proceedings will be continued throughout this afternoon and to-morrow. — Our Own Correspondent.

BOY ADVISES GIRLS!

I often think that many of us go about this business of love from the wrong angle. After all, this is the age of streamline trains, air-conditioning and 300-mile-per-hour aeroplanes.

Love is an old thing, but no one can deny that every century brings with it a new way of looking at love.

Are You looking at love through grandmother's specs?

There is a scientific way knowing whether or not that man you're so attached to is the proper one for you. There's a scientific way of telling whether or not he's the marrying kind.

Science and medicine have discovered that all of us are divided up into what are called "endocrine types."

For example, endocrine glands, which everybody possesses, will curl the hair of certain persons, and leave the hair of other persons perfectly straight. A curly-headed person will get angry more quickly than a straight-haired person.

If he's a "prepituitary."

Now let's suppose that your friend belongs to that glandular type called the "prepituitary." That, incidentally, means that his prepituitary gland is the strongest of his endocrine glands and, therefore, influences more than any other gland his growth, his mind, his appearance and his personality.

If he's a "prepituitary" he'll be very fond of women in general. Outside of that he's usually a brainy fellow and he's going to get somewhere if, indeed, he isn't somewhere already.

These fellows are often executives at the age of twenty-eight. Being a brainy fellow, he also probably will be a good actor and he will be able to make you think that he's eating his very heart out for you when, in reality, he is only faintly interested.

If he really "falls" for you he'll certainly provide you with a good home.

But—and girls, you must be prepared for this—like his black-sheep brother, the "hyperthyroid," he won't be very faithful. And very possibly, too, he may leave at the drop of the hat, not for another woman, but for one of his many businesses or outside interests.

But he's fair about it, and if anything happens to you which you don't like, it will probably be your fault.

And now, how does he look? Well, the prepituitary man is always very short or very tall—he's never medium.

Extreme height, either one way or the other, is always your best clue to the prepituitary man.

If he's tall, his frame will usually be large, spare and bony. He probably has a long narrow head, which is rather flat on the sides. Look for high cheek-bones, a bony forehead, a well-defined jaw and bushy eyebrows.

So if your friend is inclined to look this way you can be pretty sure that some day he'll be president of the mill he's working in now. And you can also be sure that you'll never marry him if you try to out-smart him.

Don't use your brain with a prepituitary—use your instincts!

These prepituitary boys always "fall" pretty hard for the "womanly woman," probably because they don't understand "womanly women," and, therefore, are inclined to put them up on a pedestal. But they know all about boyish, masculine women, especially those who attempt to compete with them in business.

So if you're a go-getting, energetic business woman, drop your prepituitary man right now. He's smarter than you and he'll never stop giving you the well-known runaround.

But if you're one of those girls with lots of womanly features—billowy bosoms and curving hips—marry him. You'll never want for anything, and he'll adore you all your life!

In further articles I'm going to tell you about the other "gland types" and what to expect from each of them.

And here's another important feature of the modern love game.

Girls, take a man's tip and learn how to walk correctly.

It didn't matter so much when clothes were voluminous and covered a multitude of sins.

But now that skirts are short and dresses mould your figure—well, it's up to you.

And by this I don't mean to learn how to put on a sexy, lolling, artificial gait, either, but how to walk naturally.

Jiggling all over isn't walking, either. It attracts attention all right, but not a wholesome attention!

Thousands of pounds worth of beautiful furs were on view at the fashion display of the National Fur Week Council at the Dorchester Hotel. Photo shows—a ski suit made of Persian lamb worn by Renee Carlane, the well known mannequin, at the show. (Fox Copyright).

I don't know whether you've ever noticed those gawking men on the corner who ever seem to be eyeing the ankles of every pretty woman who passes?

Do you think they're looking at the ladies' ankles? If you do, you're mistaken!

They are looking at the way you walk. By the way you walk they can tell more about you than if they saw you in a bathing suit.

In fact, every movement of your body tells us men intimate secrets about it—I hope you won't be horrified.

But your walk tells us more than mere sex appeal.

It tells us whether or not you are lazy or ambitious, whether or not you are high-powered or low-powered, whether you are sloppy or neat, and whether you are a nice girl or just a girl who doesn't care.

The first thing the big film studios do with young actresses is to teach them how to walk correctly.

Film proteges are schooled, drilled and trained for hours day after day in just walking. That's how important it is!

Learn to walk. Don't slouch. Don't drag. Don't roll your hips, for they'll become large and oversided if you do.

When you walk think of a graceful and well-built woman whose muscles are neither over- nor under-developed—the kind of woman who must have posed for those lovely Grecian Diana the Huntress statues you've all seen. Try to walk as she must have walked.

Observe the simple grace of beautiful animals. Watch the panthers in the zoos. Be a poised, lovely animal.

But whatever you do, don't stalk like a boy. Don't stride like a man. It's going out of style.

Be a woman with all your natural heritage of being a woman; have womanly grace, and hold yourself upright and beautifully poised.

When The Strain Begins To Tell.

Times of depression such as exist at present often mean long trying days, with business worries exacting continuous toll on the mental and physical strength. For a while you may withstand this strain, but unless adequate measures are taken to maintain the physical powers at a high state of efficiency there is bound to come a day when breaking point is reached.

Nervous exhaustion is a distressing as well as dangerous condition, among its symptoms being inability to concentrate, failing memory, insomnia, headaches, neuralgia, enfeebled vitality and spirit, melancholia, nervous dyspepsia, loss of appetite, weight, and strength. So low may the general enfeeblement become as to make work impossible.

The only practical means for avoiding nervous breakdown is the same as that which also effects a cure, the use of a reliable blood and nerve tonic. Such a tonic is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for more than fifty years famed all over the world for its power, quickly to create new, rich, red blood. By increasing the haemoglobin content in the blood, that property which distributes oxygen from the lungs and nutriment from the digestive organs, it helps to build up the body and clear the system of poisons.

The reputation of these renowned pills is world-wide on account of their proved efficacy in all cases where a tonic is required, so if you are in danger of nervous exhaustion, or any of its attendant evils, take a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills; they will restore you to vigorous health as they have countless others who found their health failing. Chemists everywhere sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

BRIDGE NOTES

By ELY CULBERTSON

Masking Weakness

The successful general does not wait for his weakest sector to be ferreted out and attacked by the enemy. If there is no way for him to reinforce this weak link, his shrewdest course is to order it to attack on its own account, thereby to simulate confidence through boldness. The same strategy can be used to excellent advantage in the play of a bridge hand.

The defenders usually are not slow in spotting declarer's weak suit. Their own leads and signal cards usually are an adequate intelligence department. But the defenders, in the hand shown below, should not be too severely censured for "falling" for declarer's camouflage of his weak link.

The bidding:

South West North East

West made an unfortunate lead in choosing his fourth best club. Declarer won with the nine spot, and promptly returned a club to the king. With only seven sure tricks in sight [four clubs, two hearts, and one spade] declarer saw that his best opportunity to secure the two other precious tricks would be through the enemy's aid. If he could entice a heart lead he might well make three tricks in the suit by playing for "split honours." A diamond trick might easily be developed, of course. But meanwhile there was the menace of the spade situation. If the lead were to be relinquished in diamonds, it was almost certain that the defenders would shift to dummy's weakness.

Declarer determined to strike a psychological blow. He therefore led dummy's ten of spades and, when East played low, let it ride. West won with the jack and, naturally enough, could not know that a spade return was desirable. He chose the safe exit of a club. Declarer won, and cashed the last club, discarding a diamond from dummy. Now, since he could not afford to take out dummy's heart king for another spade feint toward his own ace, he led a low spade toward the nine spot. West jumped up with the queen, and, as per declarer's hope, shifted to a low diamond. East won with the ace, and now was helpless. His one entry that might have brought home the long spade was gone. A diamond return was the best he could do. Declarer let this ride to dummy and, though West made his queen, it was the defenders' last trick. Dummy still had the heart king for entry to the diamond suit and thus, in all, declarer cashed one spade, two heart, two diamond, and four club tricks.

To-day's Question

Question: My partner and I were defending against a four heart contract. We had taken three tricks when my partner threw his hand face up on the table and conceded the rest of the tricks. I still had the highest outstanding trump and claimed a trick but the others said the concession must stand. Was this correct?

Answer: No. If a side concedes a trick which it could not lose by any play of the cards, such concession is void.

HELENA MAY INSTITUTE DEVELOPMENT

A net profit of $3,416 for the year was reported this morning at the annual meeting of the Helena May Institute at which Mrs. R. M. Henderson took the chair, supported by Mrs. Durran, Mrs. Whyte Smith and Mrs. Wynne Jones.

The income of the Institute during the year, not including interest and income from investments, totalled $31,328.38.

Those present included:

Mrs. N. L. Smith, Mrs. E. S. Sommers, Mrs. J. K. Bousfield, Mrs. R. A. D. Forrest, Mrs. H. M. Bartholomew, Mrs. W. K. Whitehead, Mrs. G. M. Wolf, Mrs. B. C. K. Hawkins, Mrs. Norman, Mrs. D. I. Gandy, Mrs. E. Lindsell, Mrs. N. E. Bennett, Mrs. J. H. R. Hance, Mrs. D. A. Murdoch, Mrs. D. L. Simpson, Mrs. C. B. Brown, Mrs. R. W. Roberts, Mrs. H. M. Mackenzie, Mrs. D. W. Costeloe, Mrs. D. Gubbay, Mrs. N. Mathieson, Mrs. D. J. Valentine, Mrs. R. D. Walker, Mrs. G. M. Williams, Mrs. E. G. Davidson, Mrs. J. Thomson, and Miss I. D. Williams (Secretary).

PRESIDENT'S SPEECH

Mrs. R. M. Henderson, who presided, said:—I know you will all be very pleased to hear that Lady Northcote has graciously consented to become Patroness of the Helena May Institute. Lady Northcote is extremely sorry she is unable to be present here this morning.

During the year under review there have been many changes. Lady Caldecott who, left in the Spring, took a keen interest in the Helena May Institute and I would like to take this opportunity on behalf of you all of thanking her very much indeed and wishing her and H. E. Sir Andrew Caldecott great happiness in their new sphere of work.

Mrs. Murdoch, our President, went on leave in May and I took her place. Mrs. Murdoch has been connected with the Helena May Institute for many years as Hon. Treasurer, member of the House Committee and President and has the welfare of the Institute very much at heart and has always been a tower of strength.

Mrs. Durran is now our Vice-President. Mrs. Simpson, our Hon. Treasurer, went home on leave in the Spring and her place has been taken by Mrs. Wynne Jones. Mrs. Simpson steered the large of our finance with the greatest success for the last two years, ably backed by the House Committee who have affected many economies. Mrs. Strellett, our Hon. Secretary, also went on leave and Mrs. Whyte Smith took her place. We thank Mrs. Strellett very much for the work she did. Miss Bonnell, our Secretary, left in the Spring to get married and we wish her all happiness in her new life. Mrs. Shaw became Secretary for a short time and was succeeded by Miss Williams on September 1st.

GROWTH IN MEMBERSHIP

At last year's Annual General Meeting Mrs. Murdoch made an appeal for more members and I am glad to say there has been a very good response. Last year our membership stood at 341 and it is now 504. There is still room for more as in a Colony like this, people are always retiring or being transferred and we need a steady stream of new members to keep numbers up. During last Winter and Spring there was a great demand for rooms in the Institute and every month many would be residents were turned away. It was felt that the girls and women who could not be accommodated were those whom the Institute should have been able to take in. In view of the fact that there was a profit on last year's working and it was hoped there would be one again this year, the Council, after great consideration decided to build five more bedrooms on the flat roof of the top floor facing the Peak Tram way to correspond with the bedrooms facing Garden Road, also to change the bathrooms on both bedroom floors from the north side of the Institute to the south side.

NEW ROOMS

The old bathrooms had a lovely view overlooking the harbour and the two bedrooms into which they have been altered on each floor are really delightful. The new bathrooms have replaced on each floor two bedrooms which had not such a good outlook. The work was started at the end of July and the five new bedrooms were finished on October 1st and the four altered rooms a fortnight later. They are all in use and with built in wardrobes, new furniture and parquet flooring make most delightful bedrooms and are a great asset to the Institute.

During this summer the furniture in the drawing room and the President's sitting room has been altered and recovered. New rugs have been bought for the drawing room and reading room and the whole effect is very charming and comfortable.

PROFIT ON WORKING

The House Committee has worked very hard, during the year to keep down expenses and has helped greatly to make the profit on this year's working possible. The Library Committee have kept the Library stocked with all the worth while new publications and the whole of the fiction section has been rearranged alphabetically under authors. I don't know if you all know there is a suggestion book in the Library and the Committee are always very glad if anyone suggests a good book which is not in the Library. Last Winter the Social Committee arranged some delightful concerts and I am very sorry they were not better attended. Every Friday during the year except for six weeks in the Summer the Religious Committee have arranged for different people to speak at the morning meeting. The speakers have been most interesting and varied and I would like to take this opportunity of thanking most sincerely all those who have spared the time to come and speak to us on Friday mornings. I would also like to take this opportunity of thanking very much indeed all members of Council and members of Committees for all the hard work they have put in and the time they have given so willingly to the welfare of the Helena May Institute.

The Hon. Treasurer read her report and the reports and accounts were unanimously adopted.

TWO YEARS FOR SEVEN CENTS

Chan Ng, 45, a one-eyed street coolie, pleaded guilty this morning before the Chief Justice, Sir Athol MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions to causing grievous bodily harm to Leung Wing, 30, street coolie, at Lockhart Road, and was sentenced to two years' hard labour. It was stated that he struck Leung with a chopper on October 4 in the course of a dispute over a debt of seven cents.

Dr. P. S. Court said there was quite possible that Leung might have a permanent wound on the shoulder.

NETHERLANDS MODERNISING DEFENCES

The Hague, Saturday.
Defences along the Netherlands frontiers will be completed by April 1 next year, according to an official Government statement during the budget debate on the war estimates to-day.

The frontier defences, it was revealed, would consist largely of casement batteries, at the bridgeheads of large rivers, and equipment of these casements with the requisite guns.

It was also announced that the decentralisation of military aerodromes had engaged the close attention of the Government.

UNDERGROUND HANGARS

Installation of subterranean aeroplane hangars had, in most cases, proved impracticable, owing to the nature of the soil.

Moreover, the Government had decided against building hangars of concrete.

As for equipment of the army, it was declared that with the purchase of equipment for tanks and armoured cars, envisaged in the budget, mechanisation of the army would be accomplished.—Trans-Ocean.

SOVIET INTEREST IN SPAIN WANES

Milan, Saturday.
That the Soviet Government has informed the Republican Spanish Government that, with the Japanese threat at home, Moscow can no longer supply Spain with munitions, is the report appearing in "Popolo d'Italia" to-day.

This means, says the paper, that Soviet interest in the Spanish conflict is waning, and that assistance in volunteers and supplies will now cease.—Trans-Ocean.

JAPANESE NAVAL LAUNCHES

Osaka, Yesterday.
Four new ships for the Japanese Navy have been launched this week, including an aircraft-carrier, Kureki, a seaplane-carrier (from the Kure yard), and two first-class destroyers.—Our Own Correspondent.

KING LEOPOLD'S APPEAL TO GREAT BRITAIN

London, Saturday.
Emphasis on the intimate and friendly relations between Belgium and Britain is paid by the "Daily Telegraph" this morning in a leading article on the visit to London of the King of the Belgians.

The appeal to the British people made by King Leopold in his two public speeches to remember its responsibility to the world, went far beyond the limits of utterances customary on such occasions.

The appeal was all the more remarkable because it came from the monarch of a country whose Prime Minister was entrusted by Britain and France with the weighty task of an economic mission, and who had himself succeeded in giving his country a new independent status.

King Leopold's visit, says the journal, shows that Belgium will continue to work with other nations for world progress.—Trans-Ocean.

HUNGARY AND GERMANY

Bucharest, Saturday.
The Hungarian Prime Minister, Dr. Kalman Daranyi, and the Foreign Minister, Dr. Koloman de Kanya, are visiting Germany, according to an official statement.

The statement adds that this is fresh proof of the friendship between Hungary and Germany.—Reuter.

JAPANESE TRY LANDING IN S. SHANTUNG

Nanking, To-day.

An attempted landing by Japanese forces in southern Shantung, at Lenyungkang, the eastern terminus of the Lunghai Railway, near Haichow, is reported in Chinese quarters.

These reports state that a landing was actually effected yesterday and that the situation was critical until the arrival of Chinese reinforcements when the Japanese landing party was beaten back.—Reuter.

FRAUDULENT CONVERSION CHARGES

Chung Kung, Li Kwong and Yang Tse, were this morning charged before Mr. R. Edwards at the Central Magistracy with the fraudulent conversion of $17,170.41, being money entrusted to them by Li Yau, master of the Yee Tai Import and Export Co., of No. 12, New Market Street.

The first two defendants pleaded guilty, while the third pleaded not guilty. All were remanded for three days on bail of $10,000 each.

Mr. J. T. Prior appeared for complainant and said that permission would be obtained for him to prosecute in the case.

WIDESPREAD DRIVE FOR CAGOULARD LEADERS CONTINUES IN FRANCE

Paris, To-day.

The French police are continuing their widespread drive in the sensational arms depots case.

AN OFFICIAL OF THE SURETE DECLARED YESTERDAY THAT THE TRUTH ABOUT THE DISCOVERY OF ARMS DEPOTS AND THE FINANCIAL RESOURCES AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE PLOTTERS, WOULD BE REVEALED TO THE PUBLIC "VERY SHORTLY."

In the meantime, sharp watch is being kept at all railway stations, airports and along the frontiers, in order to prevent the leader of the mysterious organisation from escaping abroad.

Up to the present no names have been published, but the police have disclosed the fact that among those believed to have been involved in the plot are several persons of prominence.

DENIAL OF COMPLICITY

General Duseigneur, former member of the French Air Ministry, in an interview with "Paris Soir," denies having had anything to do with the plot.

He says that local defence committees, which he admits having formed with the assistance of the opponents of Colonel de la Rocque, leader of the Croix de Fen (the French Fascist Party), were for the purpose of defeating an "eventual Communist uprising."

Colonel de la Rocque, himself says a press report, was responsible for setting the police on the track of the affair.—Trans-Ocean.

CIVIL WAR TRUCE RUMOURS REVIVED

Paris, To-day.

Negotiations for a truce are now going on between the two warring parties in Spain, says "Le Jour."

The paper alleges that considerable progress has been made in the talks.

It alleges that Senor Luis Companys, the Catalan President, has been conducting the parleys for the Spanish Republican Government, and that his visit to Brussels was for this purpose.—Trans-Ocean.

POPE HOLDS AN AUDIENCE

Rome, To-day.

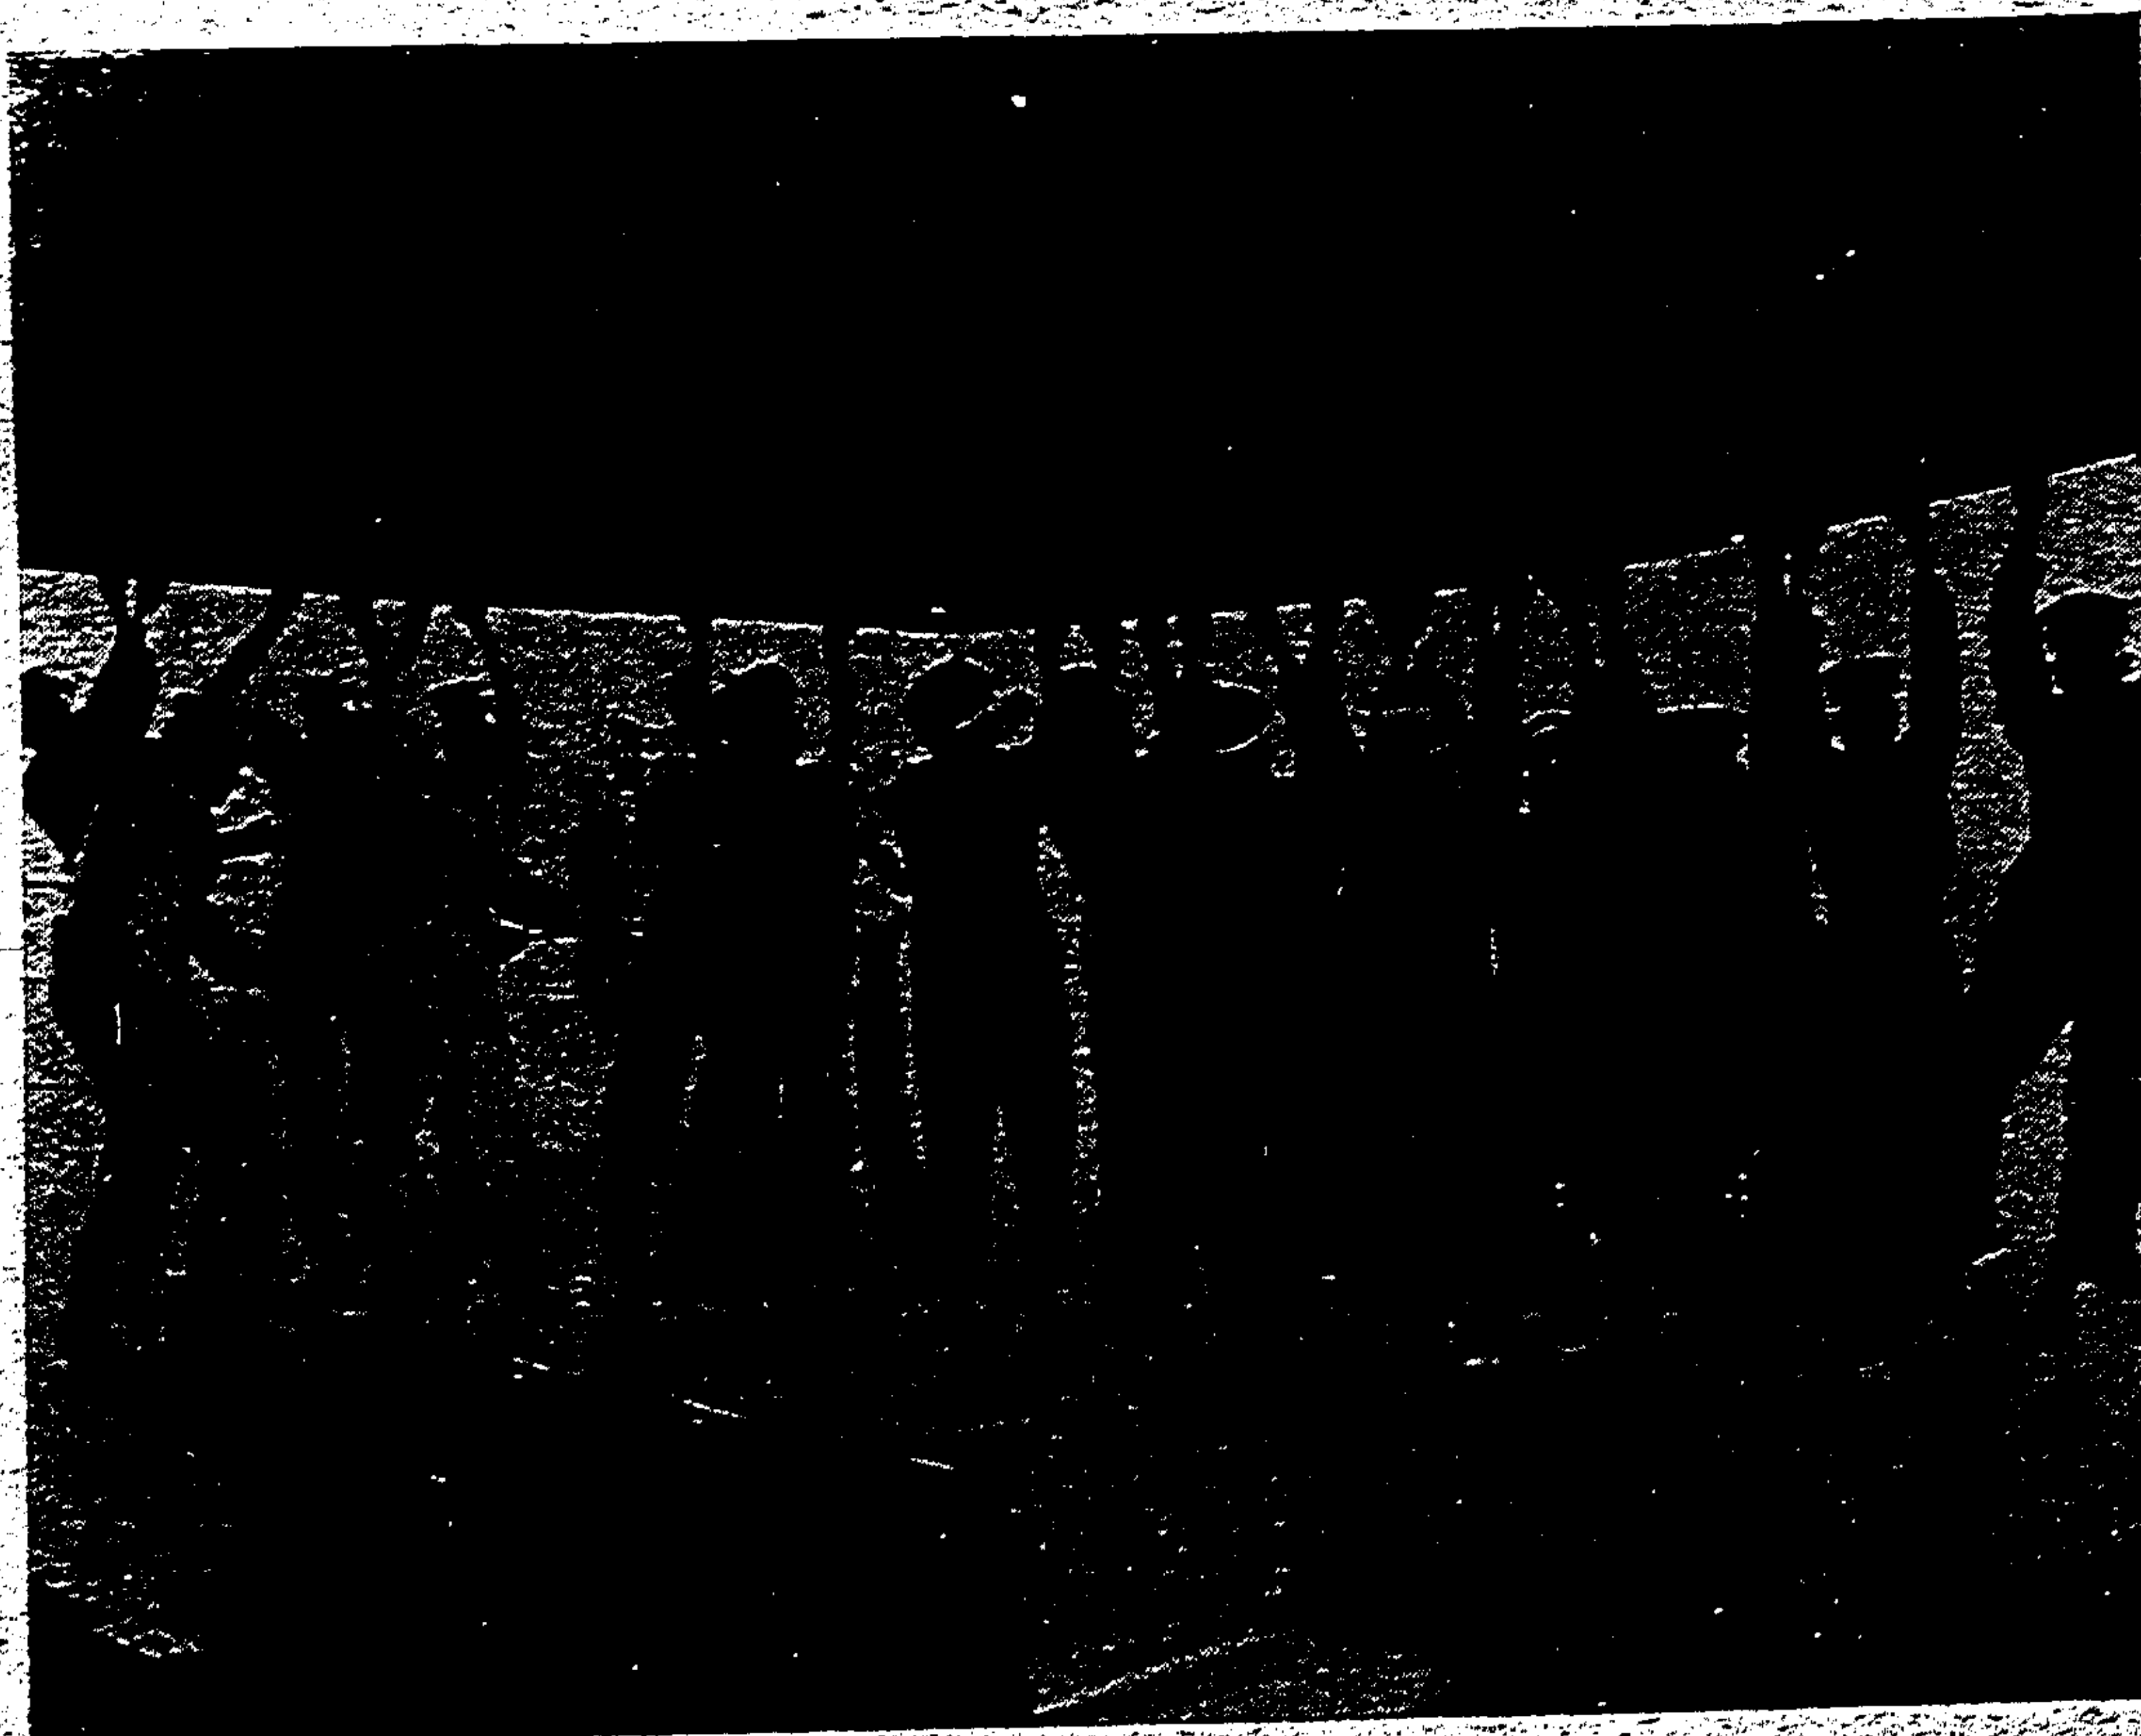

The Pope on Saturday received several Cardinals and Prelates, including the Secretary of the Congregation for the Oriental Church, Cardinal Tisserant, and the Secretary of Propaganda, Monsignor Constantini.

AMMUNITION ON EX-SOLDIER

Leung Lam, unemployed, was this morning charged before Mr. R. A. D. Forrest at the Central Magistracy with possession of 100 rounds of rifle ammunition and was bound over in a sum of $100 for one year. The ammunition was ordered to be confiscated.

Defendant was searched by a Chinese constable yesterday morning in a lane and the ammunition was found on him. He was formerly a soldier who had come to the Colony recently.

To meet the urgent demand for training personnel, the Admiralty has turned two battleships, Ramillies and Revenge, into temporary sea-going training ships for sea-men boys. In many cases the boys are making their first voyage. Photo shows 200 boys hoisting the quarter deck awning. Here some are hanging on tight as others fasten it down in a strong wind.

"FREE, FRANK, INFORMAL AND CONFIDENTIAL"

Lord Halifax On His Talk With Herr Hitler HOPE THAT DOOR HAS BEEN OPENED FOR NEW UNDERSTANDING

Berlin, To-day.

Free, frank, informal and confidential, were the terms in which Lord Halifax described his discussions with Herr Hitler, General Goering and Baron von Neurath in an interview with British correspondents in Berlin.

Lord Halifax hoped they would result in the door being opened a little along the road leading to better Anglo-German understanding, and stressed the cordiality with which he had been received.

The German papers, while agreeing that the visit will help to promote understanding, emphasise that the talks were merely informative, are not expected to produce positive results at present and should not cause a feeling of disappointment or untimely hopes.

The papers declare there is no better understanding between the two countries.

Until Lord Halifax had informed the British Cabinet of the outcome of his talks, no useful purpose could be served in speculating on how these talks might be continued.

One thing is certain, however, says the paper. The fact that the talks took place, has created general satisfaction throughout Germany.—Trans-Ocean.

TOO EARLY TO GUESS

"Mr. Chamberlain has repeatedly expressed his desire for understanding, and the manner in which the preliminary contact established with Germany will be continued, depends to a large extent on his decisions.

"At the present moment it would certainly be too early to make any prognostications on the subject, since it now rests with the British Government to decide its attitude on the basis of the impressions transmitted by Lord Halifax."

INTERNATIONAL TENSION

The "Essener National Zeitung" stresses that the conversations took place at a time of great international tension resulting from the conflicts in Spain and the Far East.

The existing political situation in the world, says the paper, is still so obscure that it will probably be necessary to await a certain measure of clarification before either Germany or England indicates desire for a further meeting and discussion between statesmen of the two countries.—Reuter and Trans-Ocean.

Salamanca, To-day.

An interview given by General Franco to a "certain English news agency," is strongly denied by the Nationalist authorities.

No such interview ever took place, it is now declared.—Trans-Ocean.

MUCH FRENCH SPECULATION ON VISIT

Paris, To-day.

Informed quarters in Paris say that the Quai d'Orsay has not yet received any information from London concerning the Halifax-Hitler talks, but that in view of the invitation to Baron von Neurath to visit London, these quarters believe that the talks must have been "fairly satisfactory."

Political quarters are indulging in much speculation over what Herr Hitler told Lord Halifax and in this connection the Central European problem is mentioned.

Special interest has been aroused by rumours that Germany may re-enter the League of Nations and may consent to participate in negotiations for disarmament.

The opinion is held that if these possibilities one day are realised, problems which to-day appear insoluble would probably be brought near to solution.—Trans-Ocean.

MAGIC CLOTH FROM TEST TUBES

SO Many Astonishing pink rabbits have been lifted out of the magic hat of modern research that a sophisticated twentieth century is apt to take startling new achievements all for granted. The average man's attitude toward them, probably is a matter-of-fact, "Very interesting. I guess they've got something there!" Nevertheless, the technical investigators persist in drawing new wonders from the hat.

The machine and electrical age still produces its quota of surprises, though they cease to excite the imagination as they once did. To-day, however, the whole world seems to have "gone chemical." Cloistered in university laboratories or in large industrial plants, chemists are labouring to find ways to make things seem to be what they are not. Synthesis, an metamorphosis appear, to the layman at least, to be their watch-words.

From their bubbling retorts, these modern knights have bought forth surprises to make the textile world blink. By modifying the characteristics and properties of fibres used in weaving they have learned to impart a wide variety of striking, unique and permanent finishes to familiar fabrics. In deed, they are able to transform one type of fabric so that it looks and acts like an entirely different one.

Many of us are wearing or using fabrics that are what they are only because chemistry has played a vital role in their manufacture. The chemical treatment of fabrics, to produce softness, stiffness, "waterproofing" and other effects, not permanently washfast, has been widely used for years. Mercerizing cotton goods, in a caustic solution, probably was the first chemical finish that did not wash out. A later discovery involved the treatment of cotton lawn with sulphuric acid to produce a permanent and washfast sheer organdie.

For permanent modification of a fabric, either the fibres must be changed or the chemical added to them must be made insoluble in water. After long research, chemists lately have found a way to produce an almost unlimited number of permanent, washfast finishes in fabrics through the application of synthetic resins in the manufacturing process. Many of the results attained by resins are now emerging from the laboratories to find a place in the commercial world.

Until recently, there was little choice between wool that was too warm for summer wear and cotton or linen which fell into a mass of wrinkles after a few hours' use.

And how many women have resisted the lure of velvet dresses because of the care they required. To-day, spun rayons, cottons, linens and velvets are made permanently crease-resistant by the resin treatment, so that they snap back quickly after creasing, wrinkling or crushing. Soft rayons in this way are converted into full-bodied, resilient dress goods. By impregnating the rayon staples with resin and then distorting them to produce permanently curly fibres, the material is given the characteristics of wool. Sheer goods may be made more sheer and soft, or given a permanently crisp finish like organdie. Percales are made to hold their freshness after repeated washings. Weight and luster of fabrics may be increased or decreased. In fact, almost any desired visible effect apparently may be achieved with resins, and, in addition, the elasticity and wear resistance of the goods is improved and shrinkage and slippage is lessened.

choice between wool that was too shrinkage and sag of silk can be greatly reduced, and its luster, softness and wear resistance greatly increased. The above examples illustrate but a few of the effects achieved. Probably 30 to 35 fabric finishes produced with synthetic resins are being marketed to-day, but it is possible to produce several hundred different effects, all of which last the life of the cloth, without needing to be "restored" periodically. Before the application of chemical formulas to textile processing, the development of new fabrics was accomplished by a change of thread count, size, twist or fabric construction, or the introduction of new synthetic or natural fibres. This often necessitated the installation of expensive machinery. The resin process, by impregnating fibres with synthetic chemicals, which last the life of the fabrics, permanently alters the yarn characteristics, and the new finishes become an integral part of the fibres. Fabrics with these new finishes already are being produced in volume for the consumers' market. They are offered under special trade names intended to identify particular features to retail shoppers. There is, incidentally, a strong movement among women's groups to obtain co-operation of retailers in labeling garments made from unfamiliar fabrics, to inform shoppers of their characteristics and advantages, and to instruct in their proper care; also to instruct yardgoods salespeople to impart this essential information to customers.

Men's wear, too, comes in form of relatively insoluble products. About a dozen major classifications of resins are commercially available to-day, and their number is constantly increasing. Ways have been found to reduce their cost so that they are being used in many inexpensive articles. The familiar bakelite products are fashioned from resin compounds. Resin compounds were confined largely to the paint and lacquer field until recently, however. Credit for their successful application of textiles is accorded to the British firm of Tootal Broadhurst Lee Company, of Manchester, who have done an immense amount of investigation into resin impregnation of fibres in the last 10 years or more. Their triumphs, especially in producing crease-resistant properties in fibres, set research chemists to work in many countries to discover new things about resins and their uses, particularly in the textile field.

The original British patentees obtained a monopoly on processes using urea-formaldehyde condensations of anti-crease finishes, but other investigators have since achieved important results with such agents as acrylic acid esters, modified cellulose and others. In the United States, a position of leadership has been taken, in the production of resinous chemicals, by the Philadelphia house of Rohm and Haas.

The secret of the remarkable results obtained from these chemicals lies in working the resins between the fibres or into the fibres, penetrating them. Various methods of application have been worked out. Use of a water solution is considered particularly advantageous where the fibres must be penetrated. This process is quite simple in its latest development. The cloth is dipped into the solution, the surplus liquid is squeezed out between rollers, like a common wringer, and the fabric dried over hot drums. Some resins must then be subjected to a heat of 280 to 300 degrees Fahrenheit for three minutes to make the resulting impregnation insoluble. Still others require dipping in acid.

Still a novelty, the advantages of permanent-finished fabrics, sometimes bring a price premium of 25 per cent or more over untreated goods, though some of the new finishes are offered at no price advance. Most of these finishes can be applied at manufacturing costs ranging from a fraction of a cent per yard to several cents, the chemical makers say. The chemicals that produce these effects are applied on the regular textile equipment.

Development of synthetic resins has occurred only in the last quarter of a century. In their early days, resin products were dark coloured, brittle and unstable, with limited usefulness. To-day, numerous synthetics are produced that are clear, glass-like and even plastic, with compositions and physical characteristics that can be controlled. Chemists themselves have difficulty in defining resins, but those of most textile importance are usually organic condensations of resin-forming substances which, upon drying or upon the application of heat, are quickly converted into

DISCOURAGING BRUSSELS CONFERENCE ATMOSPHERE

Summary Of Deliberations Being Prepared

MAY OFFER MEDIATION BUT NOTHING MORE

Brussels, To-day.

THE Nineteen-Power Conference meets again at 3 o'clock this afternoon in an atmosphere of disappointment and discouragement.

In the last forty-eight hours, experts have been working on the draft declaration or resolution (it is not yet settled what form it will take), which is to summarise the results of the three weeks' deliberations.

It is gathered that the declaration may state that the Powers are prepared to offer their mediation in the Sino-Japanese conflict, but it is unlikely to go very much further.

CHINESE ATTITUDE

It is expected that the draft will be submitted at to-day's meeting and, if approved by referendum by the various delegations, a second and final meeting will be necessary to-morrow (Tuesday).

It is understood that the Chinese delegation would insist that the report of the Conference be considered by the advisory commission of twenty-three of the League of Nations early in December.—Reuter.

FIVE YEARS' FOR HABITUAL CRIMINAL

"You have had opportunity after opportunity to reform. Short sentences appear to be of no avail. I am going to make it impossible for you to prey on the community for some time," remarked the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Criminal Sessions this morning, when he sentenced 27-year-old Lo Wah-so, to five years' hard labour on three accounts for burglary and theft.

The charges were (a) breaking and entering into the first floor of No. 14, Wing Hing Street, on June 3 last and stealing various articles of jewellery valued over $300 belonging to Mrs. Lai Sun; (b) breaking and entering into the first floor of No. 16, Village Road, on September 5 last and stealing articles of jewellery, valued at over $200 the property of Lo Chi-chiu, and (c) stealing from No. 56, Village Road articles valued at $100 belonging to Lau Suen-wa.

Mr. E. H. Williams, Assistant Attorney General, stated that the accused had 17 previous convictions during the past 10 years.

The German Community is to give a reception in the German Club in honour of the German Tennis Champions, Gottfried von Cramm, Henner, Henkel, Fraulein Marie Luise Horn and their manager, Dr. Kleinschrodt, on Friday at 9.15 p.m. The former German Ambassador to Washington, Dr. Hans Luther, will also attend the function.

LAUGH & GROW FAT

"Laughter," said a shrewd cynic, "is the the sound you hear from other people when your hat blows off and rolls in the mud." And this remark apparently contains the kernel truth about laughter if the outstanding psychologist, Professor William McDougall, is correct. For 34 years, he tells us in an article in "Fortnightly," he has preached that laughter is always about displeasing things—about "misfits, mishaps, mistakes, minor accidents, trivial hurts, slips of tongue, of pen, of foot." This, of course, is nothing less than a revolutionary doctrine, for it is generally assumed, even by philosophers, that men laugh because they are pleased. If McDougall, and also Max Eastman, author of "The Enjoyment of Laughter," are on the right track, pleasure is the result, and not the cause, of the strange body-making phenomenon which is unique to the human race. Hence a modern corroboration for the old adage, "Laugh and grow fat": for laughter brings pleasure and pleasure brings health.

That discovery certainly leads logically to the conclusion that it is the function of laughter to create pleasure where pain might otherwise exist. "Laughter," writes McDougall, "is a magician who converts painful impressions into occasions of pleasant stimulation, takes from our failures or mishaps their natural pain, whether it be the pain of our own failure or the sympathetic pain of another's failure, and converts it into something allied to joy, to jollity." The character in "The Barber of Seville" who said: "I hasten to laugh at everything for fear of being obliged to weep," may therefore have been expressing a truth far more profound than his creator knew.

Before assessing the merits of this theory that laughter expresses no pleasure at all, but happens to create it, the question of the smile has first to be decided. Here the two authorities mentioned part company. McDougall, unlike Eastman, denies that the smile—as obvious an expression of pleasure as the wagging of its tail by a dog—is merely the first step in laughter or is identified with it in any way. Only by such denial, it would seem, could the painful cause of all laughter be upheld, and the theory remain consistent. And whereas the place of humour and wit? Everyone will have his own queries to raise, but the problem is a merry one for the mind to play with, and the would-be philosopher should approach the subject with the mind as fresh as McDougall's visitor from Mars who alights at the Groydon aerodrome and sees the joking bystanders who "suddenly losing all sanity, dignity and self-control, are seized with belly-shaking laughter, and, with faces congested and contorted, limbs waving madly, bodies bending and rocking in all directions, emit a chorus of hideous howls and yelps."

Broadcast News

The news bulletins of the British Broadcasting Corporation are received all over the world, and the foreign listener is often under the impression that he hears in them the word of the British Government. This misconception arises, not unnaturally, from the peculiar status of the corporation. It was corrected once again recently by Sir Stephen Tallents when he was addressing members of the Institute of Journalists. He said that the corporation, for which he is Director of Public Relations, could be compelled to give Government news, but such a compulsion had never been put upon it. There are strong and obvious reasons why the Government should refrain from interference for anything that tended to confirm the impression that broadcast news is official news would have embarrassing results. It is interesting, too, now that the question of broadcasting news in foreign languages is under consideration. It is the practice of several other countries, but as it is generally used for propaganda purposes its adoption in England needs to be carefully guarded against the possibility of mistake. While such broadcasts may do good as correctives of erroneous statements in the foreign press, they would be useless if they fell under the suspicion of political distortion.

"The Affair"

Having settled that point about "When is a war not a war?" by officially defining the present position in the Far East as "the China affair," the Japanese Government has since had to deal with the matter of the correct phraseology for the various emergency measures which, when they have been passed by the Diet, are to remain in operation for a considerable period. The phrase which used to be employed in Great Britain—"for the duration of the war"—would hardly do, because no war has been declared. So (according to the "Japan Weekly Chronicle") the "conclusion of the affair" has been adopted as the correct formula for official use. When the Government has decided that everything is once more as it ought to be in the Far East, it will duly "appeal to the Throne to sanction its decision regarding the conclusion of the affair."

SOOCHOW IN RUINS

Great Fire Still Burning In Lakeside City

CHANGSHU DEFENDERS EXPECTED SOON TO FALL BACK

Shanghai, 9 a.m., To-day.

Soochow is in ruins following severe bombardment by the Japanese who now control the town.

Many houses and buildings are still burning away, and the streets are covered with the dead and wounded.

Conditions revealed show the "romance" of the fantastic story of the scouts marching in with Chinese troops and hoisting the Japanese flag on the pagoda.

JAPANESE RECOGNITION OF GEN. FRANCO

Salamanca, To-day.

An official communique issued here states that the Nationalist charge d'affaires in Tokyo, Senor Francisco Castillo y Campos, has for some time been in communication with the Japanese Foreign Office.

The communique says that the proposal has been made by the charge d'affaires for opening of diplomatic relations between Japan and Nationalist Spain, as they existed between the two countries prior to the outbreak of the civil war, and that the Japanese Foreign Minister expressed his full agreement.

The communique concludes that recognition of the Spanish Nationalists by Japan, and appointment of accredited diplomatic representatives, will formally take place as soon as the Emperor of Japan has signed the agreement, which he is expected to do within the next few days.—Trans-Ocean.

JAPAN'S FIGURE OF CHINESE CASUALTIES

Peiping, To-day.

Japanese figures of Chinese casualties in North China are given as:

In Hopei, 164,290, including 41,970 bodies found on the field of battle.

In Chahar, 90,000, including 23,500 bodies found on the field. Figures for Shansi are not available.

Prisoners of war taken in Hopei are said to number 730, and 1,000 in Chahar.

Asked what is being done about the prisoners, a spokesman said they are being used as labourers and are paid 60 cents a day, of which 40 cents is kept back for food and clothing.—Reuter.

The Japanese have been long engaged in clearing out snipers who remained in the town after the Chinese troops retreated.

Reports from the Fushan area state that the Chinese were forced to abandon their first defence line following severe shelling by Japanese warships and artillery and mechanised assaults.

The Chinese are retreating westwards to a new defence line and have made contact with the troops who have retired from Soochow.—Our Own Correspondent.

HEAVY LOSSES

The Japanese, who are silent regarding their own losses, state that 60,000 Chinese troops died in the defence of Soochow.

Mocheng has been subjected to a mass raid by Japanese planes, while desperate fighting is reported round Changshu, claim to the capture of which the Japanese now admit to be premature.

The position of the troops defending Changshu however is becoming increasingly precarious, with both flanks exposed, and a voluntary withdrawal is hourly anticipated.

FROM NORTH CHINA

An interesting revelation made to-day showed that four of the new Japanese regiments recently arriving as reinforcements in the Shanghai area came under transfer from North China. These troops were in the vanguard of the final assault on Fushan.

On the southern front, Chang Fat-kwei is still resisting stubbornly, and despite the fall of Kashing, the flank is holding.—Our Own Correspondent.

FRONT QUIET

Nanking, To-day.

An official communique states that the Shanghai front is comparatively quiet.—Reuter.

NIANGTSEKWAN SKIRMISH

Tientsin, To-day.

A fierce battle is going on near Niangtsekwang Pass, where Chinese guerrillas are attacking the Japanese who are holding the Pass. Japanese troops from Changshu have been ordered to the area.—Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON LOAN TO ITALY DENIED

Rome, To-day.

Rumours in the foreign press of an impending Italian loan in London, are strongly denied by the authorities here.

A trip to London by a prominent Italian financier had given rise to the rumours.—Trans-Ocean.

HANGCHOW NOW BIG MILITARY CENTRE

Hangchow, To-day.

The city of Hangchow is now a hive of intense military activity as the centre of fighting has shifted to Wuchen, Wuhsing, Shihmen, and Sungteh in northern Chekiang.

In the past 36 hours, trains, loaded with troops have been steaming out of Hangchow Railway Station, while able-bodied inhabitants in and around the city have been mobilised for military transport services.

As to the centre of the Chinese line, no important developments have been evident since the fall of Soochow, as the invaders' advance westward has been stopped by Chinese reinforcements, who are holding a new defence line in the vicinity of Soochow.—Hua Nan.

JAPANESE SEIZE S.M.P. & FIRE BRIGADE LAUNCHES

Shanghai, To-day.

More than thirty large and small launches belonging to the Water Police, the Harbour Fire Brigade, the Chinese Customs, and the Whangpoo Conservancy Board, were seized yesterday afternoon by Japanese marines from their moorings off the Customs Jetty on the Bund.

The vessels seized included the $20,000 firefloat.

The foreign members of the crew were requested by the Japanese to go ashore, but the Chinese sailors were not allowed to leave.—Reuter.

JAPANESE WITHDRAWING IN SHANTUNG

Nanking, To-day.

The Japanese are reported to be withdrawing to Yen-chang, a railway town 16 kilometres north of the Yellow River.

Tsinanfu, capital of Shantung, is returning to normal.—Reuter.

HITLER'S PREDICT Restoration To Germany In Six Years

Berlin, To-day.

A prediction that Germany within six years will once again have colonial possessions, was made by Herr Hitler speaking at the celebrations at Augsburg of the fifteenth anniversary of the foundation of the local Nazi group.

The Fuehrer declared: "We must continue our demands for colonies, and must make this demand louder and louder until the world is unable to refuse it."

"It may be a hard task but the hardest part of it is already done."

After referring to the Four-Year Plan, Herr Hitler continued: "This plan does not mean that Germany is acquiring economic independence because she does not expect her colonies back."

"It is absolutely essential to make herself strong so that she can successfully demand return of her colonies."

GET USED TO IT

"To-day foreign countries do not like mention of the subject of colonies, but in one year they will get used to it."

"In three years they will realise that something has to be done about it, and in six years they will be convinced of the necessity of taking practical steps."—Reuter.

Eight Metropolitan police horses from Imber Court are used by the boys at Canford School, Wimborne, Dorset, where riding has been a part of the curriculum for ten years. Eighty boys are now being taught and the school has its own horses and stable staff. Some of the boys appeared at the Olympic horse show and it was through this that the horses were loaned from Imber Court. The horses can be recalled when wanted. Photo shows boys on the police horses learning how to jump without holding reins. (Fox Copyright).

GOODYEAR EFFORT TO BREAK STRIKE

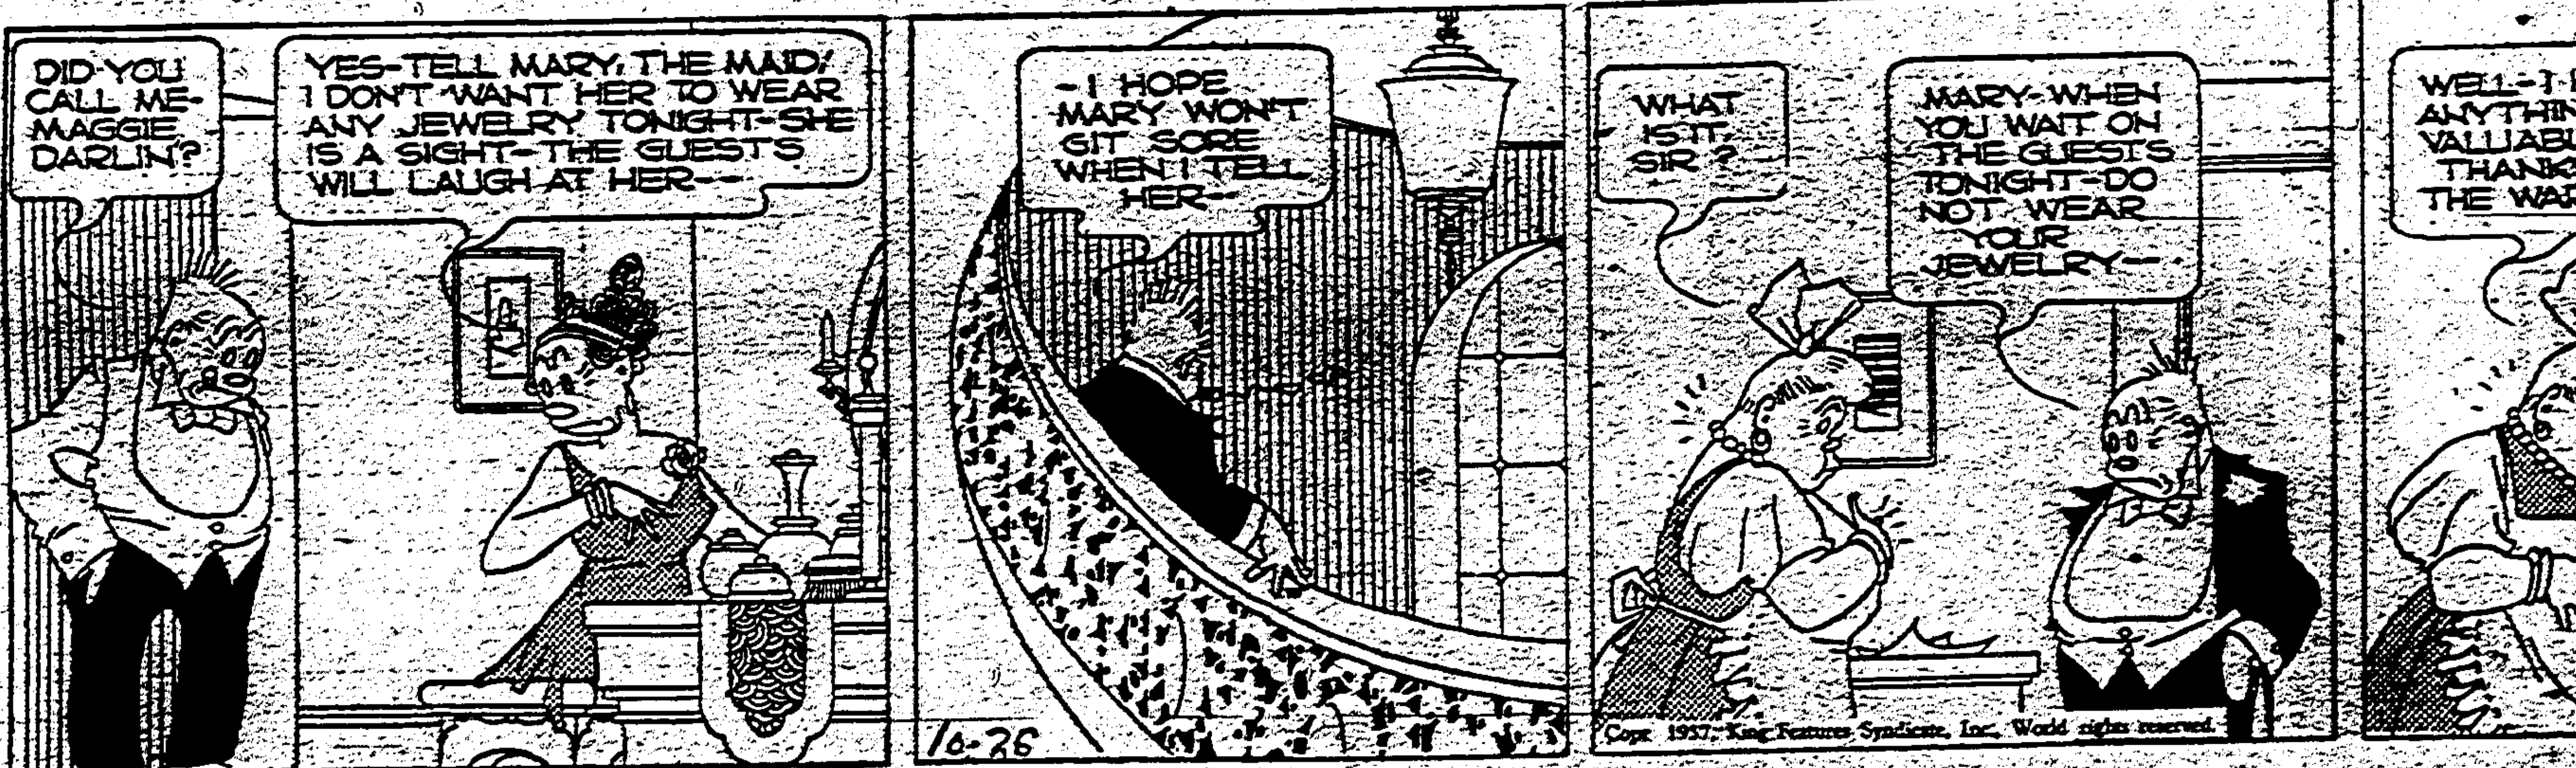

New York, To-day.

The Goodyear Tyre Company announces the re-opening of its factories at Akron, Ohio, for those wishing to return regardless of the strike situation.

A sit-down strike, it will be recalled, was started last week by 16,000 employees of the Company.

Meanwhile, the strikers holding No. 1 factory have evacuated, while Union officials are attempting to get strikers to leave No. 2 factory.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S HOUR HAS ARRIVED

Berlin, Saturday.

The House of Lords discussion of the colonial question has evoked, on the whole, a friendly echo in the German press.

The "Berliner Tageblatt" refers to the debate as a meritorious contribution to the work of clarification. Germany, it is declared, also shares the conviction that world appeasement now depends on what Britain will decide to do.

"Britain's hour has now arrived," says one paper.

The impression created in Germany, however, is that the House of Lords debate had the tragic undertone reminiscent of the strained relations which marked the fateful days of 1914.—Trans-Ocean.

Japanese Foster Drug Traffic While Chinese Push Reforms

GENEVA and Jehol, Mr. Fuller continued, are now "almost beyond belief. This is the one region in the world where the governing authority not only makes no effort to prevent the abuse of narcotic drugs but actually profits by the rapid increase of narcotic addiction."

This allegation is made in an authoritative report issued by a League of Nations Committee.

The report is based largely upon evidence given by Stuart J. Fuller, who has been collecting information on behalf of the United States, and Pasha T. W. Russell, who has been doing the same for Egypt as director of that country's Central Narcotics Intelligence Bureau. The committee fully confirms the story these credible witnesses have had to tell.

Mr. Fuller finds that while in Chinese Government provinces landable efforts are being made to put down the evil, in the wide area where Japanese are in control a truly menacing state of things exists.

Chinese Push Reforms
Referring to opium, Mr. Fuller said that in the three Chinese-ruled provinces of Yunnan, Szechwan and Kweichow, which represent most of the production of this drug south of the Great Wall, "the restrictive measures enforced by the Chinese Government are now commencing to have a noticeable effect. The production for the crop year 1936-37 is estimated to have been reduced in Yunnan by about 50 per cent. and in Szechwan, by about the same proportion, till it now rests at about one half of the usual output."

In the provinces under Japanese control or influence, Mr. Fuller went on to say, a very different state of things prevails. Opium growing is increasing enormously. New morphine factories have been started. One of these factories alone, Mr. Fuller said, has "an output of 50 kilograms of heroin daily, or some 15 times the world's legitimate needs."

The conditions in Manchoukuo

Drugs Exported in Letters

To this devastating evidence Mr. Russell makes striking additions. "In the city of Harbin," he said, "there are not less than 300 heroin dens. . . . These dens are visited daily by about 50,000 addicts of Chinese, Russian and Japanese nationality. . . . The supply of drugs is not manufactured in Harbin itself. It comes entirely from the Japanese concession in Mukden and from Dairen. It is from Dairen that thousands of letters containing drugs are posted to the United States, Egypt and elsewhere."

Mr. Russell estimates the total of heroin shipped from Tientsin at more than 500 kilos weekly, of which 60 per cent. goes direct to the United States, 20 per cent. to the same destination via Europe and the remaining 10 per cent. to other countries including Egypt. He adds: "We should not be far short of the mark if we said that 90 per cent. of all the illicit white drugs of the world are of Japanese origin, manufactured in the Japanese concession of Tientsin, around Tientsin, in or around Dairen or in other cities of Manchuria, Jehol and China, and this always by Japanese or under Japanese supervision."

INTER-SOCIETY GOLF MATCH RESULT

STEVE DONOGHUE HAD BRILLIANT CAREER

RODE SIX WINNERS IN THE DERBY

TO SET UP AS A TRAINER

Sydney, October 12.

A CABLEGRAM from the "Herald's" special representative confirms the earlier report that Steve Donoghue, the most famous English jockey since Fred Archer, is to retire from race-riding at the end of this season. Donoghue, who will be 53 years of age this month, will set up as a trainer, and among the first batch of horses he will train will be those owned by Sir Victor Sassoon, a loyal friend and his principal patron during his last six years as a jockey, and for whom he rode the winner of the Oaks, Exhibitionist, in June.

DONOGHUE WAS A RESTLESS INDIVIDUAL IN HIS BOYHOOD. HE BEGAN HIS CAREER BY BEING INDENTURED TO THE LATE JOHN PORTER, FROM WHOM HE ABSCONDED. HE TREATED HIS NEXT MASTER, M. D. PEACOCK, SIMILARLY. HIS STEPS TURNED TOWARDS FRANCE, AND HE BECAME ASSOCIATED WITH EDWARD JOHNSON AT CHANTILLY, FROM WHOM HE WENT TO GEORGE DODD AT LA MORLAYE, AND THEN TO JOHN MOORE, OF MARSEILLES. IT WAS IN FRANCE THAT HE RODE HIS FIRST WINNER IN 1905. HE WAS THUS 21 YEARS OF AGE BEFORE RACE SUCCESS CAME HIS WAY. (HOW THE 15 AND 16 YEAR OLD APPRENTICES OF SYDNEY WOULD SCOFF AT SUCH A BARREN PERIOD!).

From France, Donoghue went to the Irish stables of Philip Behan, and he had his first mount in England on that trainer's Christine in 1908, finishing third at Liverpool. His first win in England was at the same meeting on Behan's Golden Rod, who afterwards won the Goodwood Stewards' Cup twice. Donoghue's first mount in the Derby, in which he was afterwards to set up a record that will probably stand for all time, was in 1910, on Charles O'Malley, who finished third to Lemberg and Green Back.

He began to ride regularly in England in 1911, becoming first jockey to H. Persse's stable. For that trainer, Donoghue rode The Tetrarch, the "Spotted Wonder", in most of his seven successes.

REMARKABLE DERBY RECORD Donoghue first headed the list of winning jockeys in 1914, and occupied the position of honour for the eight succeeding years. He tied with C. Elliott in 1923. His Derby winners were: Pommern (1915), Gay Crusader (1917), Humourist (1921), Captain Cuttle (1922), Papyrus (1923), and Manna (1924). His long sequence of successes in the Derby was probably attributable to his absolute fearlessness on the Epsom track, and to his ability to balance a horse over the gradient and to drive it at full pace down the hill to Tattenham Corner without getting his mount out of its stride.

Donoghue rode the winners of all the classics at one time or another, and also most of the principal handicaps. Among the prominent owners whose colours he wore were King George V., Lord Derby, Lord D'Abernon, Messrs. J. B. and S. B. Joel, Major McCalmont, Lord Londonderry, Lord Carnarvon, and Lady Queensberry. Another of his patrons was an Anglo-Indian, Mr. Galstann, who originated the slogan, "Come on, Steve," that is still called on English racecourses whenever Donoghue appears likely to win a race among English jockeys.

A memorable episode in Donoghue's career was his visit to the United States in 1923 to ride Papyrus in that Derby winner's unsuccessful series of match race against Zev.

An English reference book contains this item about Donoghue: "Visited America at the end of 1931, and was asked to remain in that country to ride the Australian crack, Phar Lap."

LATER VICISSITUDES

Even allowing for jockey hero-worship always associated with successful riders, there has probably never been an English jockey who has so captured the imagination and gained the confidence and popularity of race-goers as "Steve." There was universal regret when, for a period of years in the 1920's, Donoghue met with a series of troubles. A broken shoulder as the result of a fall in the Grand Prix of 1925; a broken ankle caused by being unseated shortly before a race in 1929; and a broken leg (which kept him out of the saddle for a long time) in 1930, were blows of misfortune that were accentuated by marital and financial difficulties. But Donoghue had many loyal friends who helped him back to comfort. A retainer in 1932 from Sir Victor Sassoon, which has been renewed each year since, was one of the principal means of lifting him again to a position of eminence among English jockeys.

A. V. Remedios, above, has entered for the Colony Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis championship with Mrs. Wagstaff.

KOWLOON CHINESE LOSE AGAIN

The Kowloon Chinese Football Club suffered another crushing defeat when they lost to the Eastern Athletic Association by 5 goals to 1.

The Kowloon team played well in the first half and came near scoring on several occasions, but faded out badly in the second period.

Wong Chung, in goal, played well but his backs were weak, Ho Pui-kui being very poor in his covering.

Eastern took the lead in the first half through a penalty scored by Lee and increased it through the same player and Han Ching-ty. Yeung Kwan-po scored for Kowloon. Tse Sing-ho and Lee Tacky scored in the second half.

The Buchan Amateurs are now members of the Scottish Amateur F.A.

RUGBY FOOTBALL IN WALES TO-DAY

ROOT OF TROUBLE IS CONSTITUTION OF THE WELSH UNION SECOND CLASS CLUBS THE REAL POWER

SWANSEA'S POSITION

(By ROWE HARDING)

London, October 19.

I DEVOTED some space in recent articles to analysing the causes of the deterioration of Welsh Rugby, and I came to the conclusion that the deterioration was due very largely to the spirit of independence which now animates the second-class clubs.

CARDIFF, NEWPORT AND SWANSEA ARE STILL NAMES TO CONJURE WITH IN ENGLAND, WHERE THEIR ANCIENT TRADITIONS ARE REMEMBERED AND RESPECTED. BUT THEY COMMAND SCANT RESPECT IN WALES FROM THEIR SECOND-CLASS NEIGHBOURS. THEY ARE JUST CLUBS WITH TWO VOTES EACH AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WELSH RUGBY UNION, AND THEREFORE THE EQUALS, AND NO MORE OF EACH OF THE 80 OR MORE SECOND-CLASS CLUBS WITHIN THE UNION.

Indeed, in many respects they are worse off than the second-class clubs. Practically all of which receive an annual grant from the funds of the union, whereas the first-class clubs enjoy no such charity, though I have reason to know that some of them are badly in need of it.

The first-class clubs are not, as such, entitled to any representation on the Union, and it is purely a matter of chance whether Cardiff, or Swansea, or any other first-class club, has a representative.

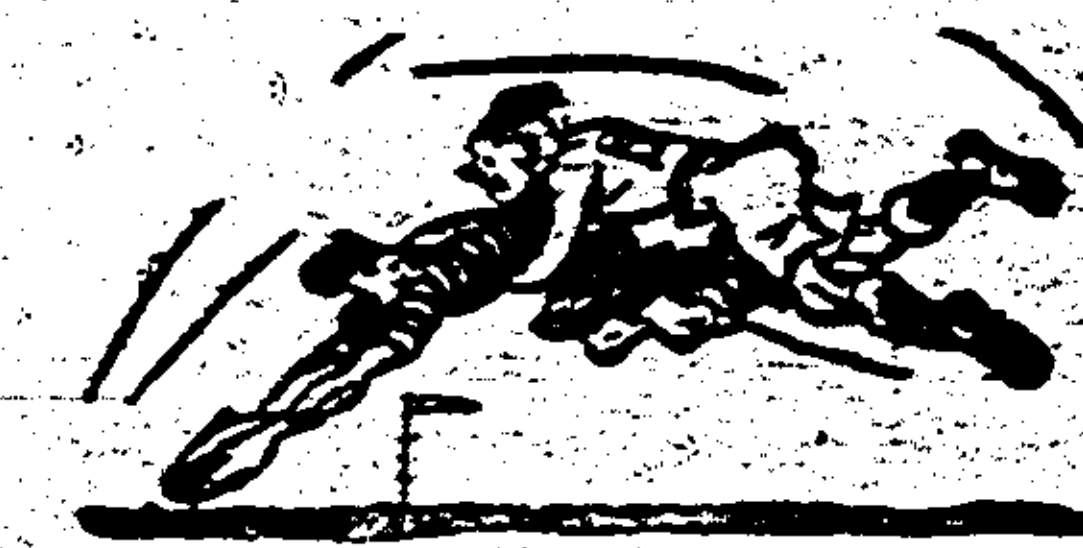

When Mr. W. T. Morgan, of Cardiff, resigned his vice-presidency recently, Mr. T. H. Vile, of Newport, was elected to the vacancy, and Cardiff would not have had any representation at all had not Mr. R. A. Cornish succeeded in displacing a Penarth member of the match committee of the union after several unsuccessful previous attempts.

SWANSEA'S POSITION

Swansea are represented on the Union by a vice-president, but he is there by the good will of the second-class clubs, and Swansea will be quite helpless to prevent it if next year the association of second-class clubs, known as the West Wales League, decide to vote for some other candidate.

Only last year Mr. D. B. Jones, a Swansea representative on the match committee, mysteriously failed to secure re-election after 15 years of service, and I see no prospect of another Swansea man being elected for many years to come.

The real powers in Welsh Rugby to-day are the two big associations of second-class clubs, the West Wales League and the Monmouthshire League. Hitherto, they have always acted independently, but if they were so minded they could, by combining forces, sweep every representa-tative of a first-class club off the Union.

WRONG CONSTITUTION

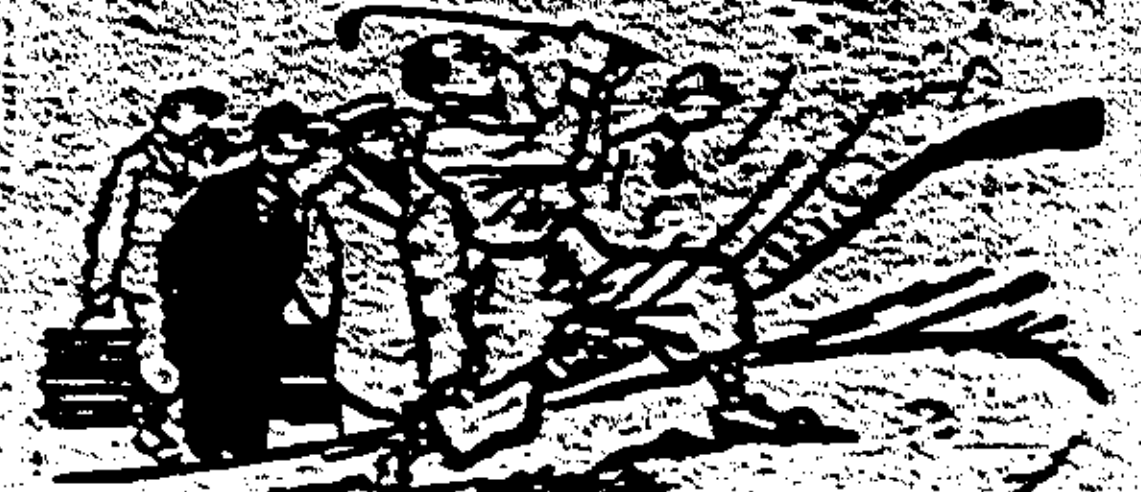

I do not suggest that they are likely to do it, but the very fact that they have the potential ability to do so proves that there is something wrong with the constitution of the Welsh Union. In my view, every first-class club in Wales should have the right to elect one representative to the Union.

The second-class clubs should be grouped into as many areas as there are first-class clubs, each area returning one representative. There would then be equality of representation as between first and second-class clubs, and the first-class clubs, who are and have always been the backbone of Welsh Rugby, would have an inviolable right to elect their own representatives without seeking favours from their humbler neighbours.

ENGINEERS WIN EASILY

The Engineers defeated the Police in their Second Division League encounter by nine clear goals after leading at the interval by only nine goals.

Beal, (3) Jones (2) Land 2 White and Denyer scored the goals.

KANE'S FATAL BLUNDER IN 12TH ROUND

KNOCKED OUT IN 13TH: TO BE BANTAM NOW

(By HAROLD LEWIS)

Glasgow, October 14.

AMID the delirious excitement of 40,000 spectators, Benny Lynch, of Glasgow, knocked out his youthful challenger, Peter Kane, of Golborne, in the 13th round at Shawfield Park, Glasgow, to-night. He thus retains his world and British flyweight championships.

THE CENTRAL FIGURE OF THE FINAL SCENE, FORLORN AND PITIFUL, WAS KANE, THE BRILLIANT LANCASHIRE PRODIGY, AS HE LAY ACROSS THE LOWER ROPE, CONSCIOUS ENOUGH TO KNOW THAT HE WAS BEING COUNTED OUT YET UNABLE TO MOVE, THE LAST SHRED OF RESISTANCE HAVING BEEN BATTERED OUT OF HIS BODY.

Over him bent the tall, thin figure of the referee, Mr. Barrington Dalby, with his mouth close to Kane's ear, shrieking out the passing of the seconds and hitting the floor with his fist.

Mr. Dalby continued to watch the timekeeper, for the din was ear-splitting. People were already clambering over the Press benches into the ring. A cap and a paper emblem, flung into the ring with other things, lay near Kane's feet. Back in the darkness was just one terrific noise.

There was a smile on the dour face of Lynch for the first time since he had entered the ring. For 13 rounds Kane had fought with all his usual aggression and dash, hitting hard, moving at great speed, defending cleverly, often puzzling Lynch, and sometimes rocking him back on his heels with a decisiveness and impudence that Lynch plainly did not relish.

In the last two rounds Kane had taken more punishment than a young boy of 19 ought ever to have to accept, no matter how willing he may be, nor how important the issue. Now he was well and truly beaten. He was actually out.

STILL UNCONQUERED

To me it seemed, from the expression of his eyes, that the spirit of this grand young fighter was still unconquered. There was a crooked smile on his face as they carried the little philosopher to his corner, and well there might be, for he will surely be a champion yet.

At the count of 10 the ring had suddenly filled with fight-crazed people, who made a rush for Lynch as the champion danced and shouted with joy, his arms flung high.

A squad of white-capped police appeared and packed the ring even tighter. Then Kane was lifted to his stool, stunned and carried away, and the cheers that followed him were those of a crowd who appreciated the wonderful fight he had put up.

LOST ON SCALES

It may be argued that this fight was lost on the scales. Kane looked a trifle frail about the legs and hips, and his face was thinner than usual. He made the weight too easily, being 3lb under the stipulated eight stones.

He also lost it, however, through inexperience, for in the 12th round he committed a fatal blunder.

Until this point there could have been little in the fight on the card of the referee. Kane had shown signs of tiring at the end of the ninth round, but the next two rounds were even, and the almost continuous aggression of the non-stop Lancashire boy gave Lynch little time for scoring points.

CAUGHT ON THE TURN

Then, in the 12th round, a sudden left caught Kane fairly under the jaw. Lynch had tried this punch many times before, often missing, sometimes landing, but never with any apparent effect. But this one caught Kane as he was turning, and he collapsed to the floor at once.

Probably it was the first time in his life that he had ever been dazed by a punch. He made the colossal mistake of getting to his feet at once. Lynch, deceived by this action, did not jump in immediately; in fact, he did not attack until the referee waved to him a second time.

UNMERCIFUL PUNISHMENT

Then he saw the damage that he had done and for fully two minutes — the time remaining until the end of the round — he punished Kane unmercifully. Kane was just clever enough to avoid a knockout or another knock down, but he could not avoid some terrific body punishment.

He went to his corner dazed, and it was clear that nothing but a miracle could save him.

Lynch is not the man to let a beaten opponent recover, and he went for a knock-out as soon as the 13th round started. A left and right to the jaw put Kane down for eight, and then came a final hurricane of blows under which Kane subsided into the ropes.

From the start until the end of the 11th round this fight was as brilliant and full of action as any you would see in 10 years. It began in the first second by a toe-to-toe test of punching in which neither would yield, and at no time during those 11 rounds could either man be said to have a clear lead.

THE WINNING PUNCH

Kane did most of the attacking while Lynch waited for him in the hope of thrusting home his powerful left hook to the liver. This punch won him the fight, for although he did not land it more than two or three times a round, the force of it gradually sapped the strength of his challenger.

Kane struck home repeatedly. He started the second round in whirlwind fashion and begged for another test of punching power. Neither had ever been hit so hard nor so often before, and if Lynch was able to expose the inexperience of Kane at times by his technique and tricks, he was also forced to receive a sequence of hard punches which never slackened.

CLEAR ROUND EACH

Lynch's supporters in fact, must have been uneasy when Kane won the 7th round by a big margin, the first round with any clear-cut winner. Lynch himself looked somewhat disturbed, but he had his revenge by winning the 8th equally well, and doing so, moreover, with some very damaging punches.

Kane was punished in the 9th too, and probably this was the turning-

C. A. WHITCOMBE RETAINS MIDDLESEX TITLE

London, October 14.—Charles Whitcombe (Crews Hill), Britain's Ryder Cup team captain, retained the Middlesex Professional Championship, which he has now won six times, with the record low aggregate of 134 (68 and 66) on the Wyke Green course at Osterley yesterday.

His 66 in the afternoon was a record for the course, beating the unofficial figures of 67 made by the local professional, F. M. Dean, Bogey for the course, which measures 6,147 yards, is 73.

point of the fight Kane again sought a rally, and the two entered into the longest of the fight.

For nearly two minutes they stood and lasted at each other with all they had. Neither would step back. Lynch had the better of it, hit harder, and planted his punches more accurately, and for the first time Kane went to his corner showing slight signs of tiredness.

MUST BE BANTAM NOW

Still, there was nothing to indicate that the fight would not last the full 15 rounds, with the referee having to count his points with extreme care, until that fatal punch dropped Kane with dramatic suddenness in the 12th round.

Kane will not fight again as a fly-weight. His manager announced after the contest that his man will now go into the bantam class. The weights were: Lynch 7st 13lb 2oz, Kane 7st 12lb 14oz.

Lynch received a percentage of the receipts, with a guarantee of $4,000 and Kan $1,500. The fight was a record in Scotland as to receipts and attendance, but the actual figures were not disclosed.

Rain fell in heavy showers up to the time of the big fight, and in a previous bout Johnny McCrory several times slipped and fell heavily.

VINALL JOINS LUTON TOWN

London, October 14.—Norwich City have parted with the one player they once regarded as indispensable. Vinall, their centre-forward, who had played in 164 League matches and eight Cup-ties for them up to the end of last season, has been transferred to Luton Town. Vinall missed four matches last season. Those were the only occasions he was out of the Norwich team during his 4½ years with them.

The possessor of this remarkable record now becomes the fourth first-class centre-forward on Luton's books. They already had Payne, the England Trial cap, Redfern, recently transferred from Newry Town (Ireland), and Cox, of Arsenal and Fulham experience.

JAPANESE HINT NEGOTIATIONS FOR SHANTUNG RETREAT

Tientsin, To-day.

Japanese military headquarters this morning admitted the retreat of the Japanese forces in North Shantung, but hinted that this was the result of some negotiations between Han Fu-chu and Japanese representatives.

It seems on the face of it a possible explanation, but it is pointed out here that one of the Japanese conditions would be free passage for their troops through Shantung Province, a condition which would not be preceded by a withdrawal of Japanese forces.

Chinese report state that the retreat was made necessary by Chinese guerilla activities on an unprotected rear, which cut communications between the Japanese vanguard and Tehchow. — Our Own Correspondent.

CHINESE REPORT

Nanking, To-day.

The Japanese are reported to be in retreat in North

TYPHOON NOW WEST OF BASHI CHANNEL

Hong Kong shivered somewhat last night and early this morning with a steep drop in temperature. Maximum yesterday was 75 degrees, minimum last night 58 degrees. At 10 o'clock this morning the thermometer reading was 63 degrees with humidity 62 per cent.

The Royal Observatory reported this morning that the anti-cyclone covers China generally and the neighbouring seas, and pressure remains highest to the north of the Yangtse Valley; the depression has moved into the Pacific to the east of Japan.

The typhoon has recurved and is situated to the west of the Bashi Channel moving N.E. or E.N.E.

Local forecast:—N. and N.E. winds, strong, moderating; fine generally.

Shantung.

The Chinese explanation is that troops which crossed the river in districts west of Tsinan-fu, cut all communications on the railway, and gravely threatened the Japanese rear. — Our Own Correspondent.
